

Wash your Car Without Hosing the Environment

Home car washing sends high amounts of pollutants into the storm drains and directly into our rivers, lakes and streams. The average home owner uses over 116 gallons of water each time they wash their vehicle. Elimination of these pollutants and conservation of water can be achieved by using waterless car washing products. Many of these products are only available online, so we created a comparison as an information guide to help you make an informed decision.
